Installation Of Gas Mains Begins

LAC LA BICHE—A quantity of steel pipe has arrived and is being dressed by crews of Banister Construction Company preparatory to installation of gas mains and service lines throughout the town. Earl Christenson is here as manager of the town's gas system and is getting acquainted with the town and its people. Mr. Christenson has had wide experience in gas management and comes with the best of recommendations. He is married and has one child.

Applications for gas service lines are being received at a fast rate at the town office as each day brings some new development in the business of making natural gas available to over 1,200 residents of Lac la Biche.

Level Of Lac la Biche Reaches Highest Peak In Over 20 Years

By KEN LARSON

The Owl River, home of tasty fighting pickerel, may be the culprit responsible for causing the level of Lac la Biche to rise unofficially to the four foot mark.

"Our investigations show," says R. E. Bailey, chief engineer with the Water Resources section of the Alberta Department of Agriculture, "that the flow of water from the Owl into the lake is three times greater than the outflow from the lake."

The department is still not satisfied with this answer and is continuing to search the Lac la Biche river right down to the Athabasca to see if there may be some major obstruction.

Weeds in the outlet are stopping the flow to a certain extent, says Mr. Bailey, but this problem will not be tackled until all other possibilities are ruled out.

The water is at its highest level since 1939. However, the action of the lake, is similar to large lakes throughout the province. All have their high and low periods, not always the same number of years apart.

Back in 1952, said Mr. Bailey, the department was asked to dam the lake because it was so low. However, the present condition is satisfactory to commercial fishermen but unsatisfactory to farmers who find farm lowlands being inundated.

The lake has been rising by .06 feet per day, said Mr. Bailey, but now seems to be receding.

"We're still conducting the investigation," said Mr. Bailey, "and when we've completed it we'll present our report to the minister. We have come to no definite conclusion as to the solution. Any undertaking involved will likely be a major one when it happens."

time any manufacturer will utilize as many airplanes, reserve as many accommodations, and arrange for as many meals for a single group at one time.

Sixteen United States and Canadian airlines will airlift the dealers, plus 1,500 other persons, into Dallas for next Tuesday's meeting. Due to the size of the group, facilities such as the Dallas Memorial Auditorium, the Texas State Fairgrounds, and the Cotton Bowl will be needed to accommodate everyone.

Stiffen Fur Farm Regulations

New fur farm regulations adopted recently by the Alberta Department of Agriculture state that mink cannot be imported into Alberta without permit. The Department has decided to exercise tight control over mink brought in for herd improvement purposes in an attempt to prevent the virus enteritis disease from infecting mink at 300 ranches in the province.

Administration of fur farms was transferred from the Lands and Forests Department to Agriculture at the last session of the Legislature. The legislation was also strengthened to require the farmer to build adequate facilities to keep the animals inside the pens as well as preventing other animals from coming into the pens. Concern was expressed in the Legislature that animals which were not yielding sufficient returns could be turned loose and become pests.

Feel Pinch On Whyte Avenue

South Edmonton businessmen are feeling the pinch of a dwindling supply of customers as new suburban shopping centres continue to spring up. "Whyte Avenue will become nothing but a through street, if it continues this way," said the manager of a large 104 Street appliance firm.

Getting as many of the 100,000 people on the south side of the Saskatchewan River to shop along 82nd Avenue is a problem, merchants say. Bus routes run directly along 109 Street and 99 Street to downtown Jasper Avenue stores, a transfer is needed to go down Whyte.

A South Edmonton dress and dry goods store owner said the present bus service doesn't help any.

A hardware merchant said his business was hurt particularly when the city had imposed a no parking ban along Whyte Avenue between four and six in the afternoon. This has been removed and business has picked up.

Merchants have complained that the switch in parking meter charges is definitely resulting in lost business. Penny meters were removed, and five cents for one-half hour meters, were installed. This time limit—and higher cost to the motorist—is being felt by merchants in the dollar and cents departments.

A new artery over the CPR tracks at 76th Avenue is said to be in the long range plans of the city, but nothing has been done as yet. The only way now to get from 104 St. to 99th St. is via Whyte Avenue or 64th Avenue.

Some say the South Edmonton's Business Men's Association isn't doing an effective enough job, while others argue that you can't buck suburban shopping centres anyway—at least they keep residents home to shop in their own communities.

What can be done to combat the tendency to bypass Whyte Avenue merchants? One businessman suggests a newspaper flyer which would promote services and merchandise along Whyte Avenue. This could be worked with Jasper Avenue merchants, for city wide distribution, in a concentrated effort to get suburban shoppers thinking about downtown stores.

Whatever the answer, it appears that South Edmonton merchants should get their heads together before Whyte becomes Ghost Avenue.

THE Homemaker

By BERTHA
M. McCUTCHEON

The Royal Bank Letter for July is titled Safety is a Personal Thing. I would advise every adult to read this thought - provoking article. Here is a short excerpt titled SAFETY IN THE HOME - "Because so many accidents which result fatally occur in the home, the greater part of this Monthly Letter will be devoted to the challenging problem of safeguarding parents and children in what could be made the safest place in the world.

It has been said by authorities that at least three quarters of all domestic accidents are preventable. That places the responsibility squarely on the senior members of the family, not only to remove all possible hazards but to secure family participation.

Good housekeeping - cleanliness and orderliness - is a fundamental of accident prevention in home, office and factory, and on the farm. It prevents accidents by removing their causes.

In well-kept homes, offices and factories, there are no loose objects on stairs, floors and landings; no articles that can fall from overhead; no wet or greasy floors; no projecting objects in hallways or aisles; no exposed nails or sharp pieces of metal; and no sharp utensils or tools lying where they may be inadvertently touched.

Here are some facts gathered from records of many thousands of home accidents.

About four out of five home fatalities occur inside the house, and more than half of these happen in a bedroom. While more men are hurt on stairs and steps, more women are injured in bedrooms. Causes of bedroom accidents include: loose rugs; smoking in bed; leaving clothes, dressing stools, chairs and other objects where they may be tripped over; careless handling of electric plugs; leaving doors partly open.

Having a handrail on every stairway is a safety "must". When someone leaves an object on the steps, or there is a broken or odd-sized step, or if the carpet is torn, or when someone slips, many accidents on stairways could be prevented if there were something to grab quickly. The lighting of stairways should be good, rugs should be well anchored.

Electrical hazards must be guarded against. Don't break through or saw through a wall without turning off the electricity at the main switch; you may strike a wire cable with fatal results. Don't leave a fan, a radio, or a heater where it may fall into the tub when you are bathing; don't forget that even with the plug pulled out your television set is dangerous, because the rectifier tube stores up and holds high electrical energy; don't leave bare wires, empty light sockets or defective appliances where they can be touched by chance.

Among danger spots in the kitchen are the stove, of whatever sort; knives; electrical appliances carelessly used; lye, ammonia, and cleaning fluids; open cupboard doors; slick waxed linoleum; careless climbing to reach high shelves; and pots left on the stove with their handles pointed outward.

In the safe home the bathroom is kept clear of loose razor blades and safety pins. Medicines are in a high latched cabinet. More than six hundred deaths due to accidental poisoning of children are recorded in the United States every year. It was said in the CIBA Clinical Symposia in mid-summer 1951: "The number of children who have been accidentally poisoned as a result of parental carelessness is truly tragic." In Canada, more than 3,000 persons died in ten years as a result of accidental poisoning."

Motor vehicles are the top cause of accidental death up to the age of 65 years. After 65, it is falls.

One trouble with the world is that there are too many people who do no work.

JOHN DEERE 896 RAKE

It rakes swaths clean behind 9-foot Mowers

The extra-long, right-angle reel of the low-cost John Deere 896 rakes swaths clean behind 9-foot mowers. This means you'll rake more hay in the same time and make heavier windrows in light crops. In beans the 896 rakes eight 30-inch rows into a single windrow in two passes to speed raking operations.

The frame design of the high-speed 896

Rake assures cleaner raking in rough, uneven fields. The wheels are tucked in close to the reel—reducing the possibility of hay "hiding" in swales or escaping on ridges.

Additional features on the 896 include the spring-suspended reel, ground drive, high clearance, curved teeth, simple adjustments, and rugged construction.

Charge Reds Committed Atrocities

GENEVA — The International Commission of Jurists Sunday charged that Red China had engaged in a campaign of killing, torture, rape, abduction and forced sterilization in Tibet in the last 10 years.

The commission published a 340-page report based mostly on accounts by Tibetan refugees who fled to India after the futile revolution of March, 1959. The report also included testimony by Tibet's spiritual and political leader, the Dalai Lama, and gave extracts from official Chinese publications.

It was drafted by an 11-member international committee on Tibet, headed by Purshottam Trikamdas, senior advocate at the Supreme Court of India. The commission is a private organization from non-Communist parts of the world.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce opened up new outlets at 10127-102 St., Sherwood Park and Kensington Shopping Centre at 132 Ave. and 127 St.

The Royal Bank of Canada opened one in the Valleyview district several months ago.

5 Aldermen Likely To Run

Five Edmonton aldermen whose two-year terms of office expire this October will likely be in the Oct. 19 election contest. Mrs. Laurette Douglas, who ran as an independent two years ago, intends to seek her fourth term. Mrs. Ethel Wilson, a Citizens Committee nominee, is considering a fifth term. The dean of the council and mayor for a short time, Fred Mitchell, is also considering seeking his eleventh term.

The only two who have not fully come to decisions to run are lawyer Donald Bowen and Hon. George Prudham, the former federal minister of lands and technical surveys.

City Man Will Attend "Maggie" Awards Night

Ted Brown, head of Provincial News Agency in Edmonton, will attend the fourth annual "Maggie" Award competition in New York. This is the magazine industry's counterpart to moviedom's Oscar award and TV's Emmy. The award will go to the "Outstanding Magazine Editor of the Year" as selected by a poll of the nation's magazine editors.

In making this announcement, Mr. Ted Brown said, "For the first time, an award will be presented to the magazine editor who has made a unique and outstanding contribution to his profession and raised the stature of the magazine industry by stimulating creativity and maintaining high editorial standards."

Maggie Awards were established in 1957 by leaders of the periodical industry. Their goals are to honor the creators of the highest quality publications; call the public's attention to the best in reading material available at low price from newsstands; and provide editors and publishers with added incentive for improving their publications.

"A total of twelve Maggies will be awarded, including the top award to the year's outstanding magazine editor," said Mr. Brown.

Five awards for general magazines will be voted upon by 130,000 newsdealers in the U.S. and Canada and 850 local distributors who supply them. Award-winning categories for magazines include: Fiction; National or International Events; Sports, Hobbies, or Special Interests; Family and the Home; and Entertainment.

Four awards to paper-bound book publishers will be voted by the distributors and 50 top U.S. and Canadian retailers. Awards for paper-bound book publishers will go for their entire output during the year in these categories: Greatest Number of Good Titles; Best Service to Economic Interests of the Reader and Industry; Most Famous Titles and Authors; and Best Promotion of Good Reading Habits.

Two awards for comic magazines will be judged by Comics Magazine Association of America. Comics will receive Maggie awards in the categories of Entertainment and Information.

All contestants will be judged on their work between July 31, 1959 and July 31, 1960. All magazines and comics on sale at U.S. and Canadian newsstands are eligible for awards.

The Maggie Awards event will take place in conjunction with the Council for Periodical Distributors Association's annual convention in New York during September. The CPDA, of which Mr. Brown is a member, is made up of the more than 850 leading distributors in North America who supply approximately 130,000 newsstands with magazines, newspapers and paperback books.

Sounds Good ... But How Good Is It ?

Most merchandise and services are sold on a "satisfaction guaranteed" basis, these days. However, the practical value of any guarantee depends on its convenience to the purchaser or the guarantor.

When you make a purchase in a city many miles away, and something goes wrong, it isn't always convenient for you to return it. If you receive service at your home from some out-of-town firm, you may wait a long time.

That's why it makes good shopping sense to do business with your local merchants and service establishments. They, too, guarantee their products and services... and what's more they are right on hand to back them up. Their guarantee of satisfaction IS convenient.

Anglers' Paradise Found In North

Fighting Pike And Chunky Perch Reward Of Visitors To Lake Area

The growing popularity of the Lac la Biche district as a family fishing and camping holiday ground is more evident each year. An example of this is the attention given it by the Edmonton Journal in this article which appears below.—Editor.

By Ken Mason
in the Edmonton Journal

If there's such a thing as the fabled fisherman's paradise it must exist in the vast empire of lakes, rivers and streams lying 100 to 200 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Alberta sportsmen have been living on the threshold of this fabulous fishing country for years, but except for a few of the accessible lakes the region remains virtually untouched.

Its attractions are countless clear, sparkling lakes teeming with fighting pike, and chunky perch that weigh up to two pounds, and rivers with spring walleye runs which offer fishing that must equal the best on the continent.

More and more anglers are discovering the Alberta northland and within a few years it should develop into one of the top resort, vacation and outdoor sport regions in the province.

ROADS ROUGH

One thing holding back the development is the lack of good roads, but the provincial highways department is working on that and within a year or two access to the region should be relatively easy.

Last weekend we had a first-hand look at the area, at the invitation of Mike Maccagno, member of the Legislature for Lac la Biche riding.

Mike's territory, the biggest constituency in the province, runs from the Lac la Biche district north to the Northwest Territories boundary, and contains hundreds of lakes and rivers seldom if ever fished by white men.

We left at noon Saturday with Bill Gold of the Calgary Herald and his wife Elaine. The first 50 miles of the trip are on good pavement, to a point just north of Redwater on Highway 28. From there you turn on Highway 46 which is gravelled and quite rough in spots for the remaining 100-odd miles.

The road was dusty, too, despite heavy rains the day before, but we made the trip in little more than three hours.

BEAVER LAKE

Mike Maccagno, who has to rate as one of the best hosts in the country, put us up in his huge cabin which nestles on the wooded shore of picturesque Beaver Lake, five miles from the town of Lac la Biche.

Beaver Lake was smooth as glass under an early morning sun on Sunday and the silence was broken only by the occasional plunk of a tullibee breaking water offshore, and the sound of voices in the distance from a small campground on the edge of the lake.

Just for something to do, and not really expecting to catch anything, we flipped a tiny red and white No. 6 Len Thompson spoon from the end of Mike's small dock.

FIGHTING FISH

A couple of turns of the handle, and pow! We were hooked fast to something that tore off another 30 feet of sir-pound monofilament, then sounded and skulked on the bottom.

Ten minutes of stubborn tussling and it was beached — a plump northern pike that would run three to four pounds.

Later that morning Mike gassed up his 50 h.p. outboard and took us on a fishing tour of Beaver Lake in his big powerboat.

Beaver is deceiving from the shore. It looks like a small body of water, but what appears to be the opposite shore is really a couple of islands. In fact Beaver Lake, some 14 miles long, is dotted with islands.

A few miles out from Mike's cabin and you might as well have been hundreds of miles from civilization. You had the feeling you were discovering the country for the first time. In the whole trip over the lake, we spotted only one other boat.

Mike took us to a spot a few feet from a reedy shore and allowed that this looked like a good place to nail a few northern.

On this first cast Mike tied into an average-sized pike and we had to agree the fishing was all he had said.

2-HOUR CATCH

Within two hours or so of not very strenuous fishing we had hooked and landed a dozen fish and turned a couple of others back. Best bait of the day was the old faithful red and white spoon. The size didn't seem to matter.

The fish weren't bragging size and the quantity wasn't really spectacular, but the thing about it was the certainty of hooking a northern on practically every other cast. We quit at a dozen simply because we had enough. I'm convinced if we'd worked at it all day we'd have come back with a boat-load.

Back at the cabin, we filleted the pike and Mike fried the fillets over an open fire.

The pike from Beaver Lake seemed to be more energetic than their brothers from warmer waters farther south. And the flesh, when cooked, was firm, white and tasty.

TRY PICKEREL

Next day we tried the big waters of Lac la Biche for pickerel, but the weather was hot, the lake was dead calm and there were no bites. We had to settle for three small perch which fell prey to salmon eggs fished on the No. 6 Thompson we usually use for trout.

That took up all the time we had, but for future reference we've made note of Fork Lake, 35 miles from Lac la Biche, where the perch are really large, and the Owl River where the spring walleye run has become legendary.

And some day, with luck, we'll make it farther north to Grist Lake, where lunker lake trout are there for the taking.

Appointments Announced By Socreds

Three executive appointments were announced by Robert N. Thompson, newly-elected president of the Social Credit Association of Canada.

Herbert Heppner of Brantford, former assistant national organizer, will become secretary-treasurer of the association and take up full-time duties at the national office in Ottawa.

A. B. Patterson of Abbotsford, B.C., will continue as national organizer. Basil Kuglin of Foxboro, Ont., formerly national office manager, will become director of information and publications.

Both Mr. Heppner and Mr. Kuglin will give part of their time to organizational work in work in Ontario, Mr. Thompson said.

The appointments, effective Sept. 1, are the first to be made following reorganization of the association at a convention in Ottawa last month.

Mr. Thompson also announced in an interview that the association executive will meet here Aug. 26 and 27. The main topic will be a convention to pick a successor to retiring national leader Solon Low. Mr. Low, 60-year-old Raymond, Alta., school teacher, has been party leader since 1944.

Some executive officers are leaning toward the calling of a leadership convention in Ottawa next spring, possibly around Easter.

So far no nominations have been received for the leadership. However, there have been moves by constituency groups to draft Premier Manning of Alberta for the job.

Life would be simpler if the people on the earth were sincere.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

THERE IS A SCIENCE IN FAITH

There is a science in faith. There is a definite way to approach it. Faith is not something you ask for, not something you try to get; it is something you already have.

In Romans 12:3 the Bible says, "... God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith." God deals to every individual a measure—a measure of faith. Everyone comes into this world with it. You have it; I have it. Some may not use their measure of faith; some may lose it; some may misuse it; some may learn how to use it well, but each of us starts life with a measure of faith.

However, the faith that is given us is deposited in seed form. It is planted within us. We have the innate capacity for faith—the potential power to believe. But, there is a difference in faith as such and faith as an act of positive believing.

When someone approaches me and says, "Brother Roberts, I have all the faith in the world," immediately a question comes into my mind: If you have, why has it taken so long for you to put it into practice? You can have all the faith in the world but until it becomes action, until it becomes a strong, positive, motivating attitude, your faith is powerless.

Jesus said to Thomas, who had doubted his Saviour's resurrection from the dead: "Thomas, see the evidence."

Look upon me and see my nail-pierced hands." And when Thomas saw that it was the real Christ, Jesus said, "Be not faithless, but believing."

Jesus made a difference between the word faith and the act of believing. He meant this: "You may have the capacity for faith, the power to believe, but I want you to start believing."

You may be seeking divine healing from God; you already have the faith (God gave each of us a measure of faith), but are you using the faith you have? Has your faith become a living, dynamic thing? Do you feel your faith? Are you aroused to action by it? Does it push outward, striking a blow for deliverance? Does your faith bring you to a point of decision? Do you act upon your faith?

When faith is alive in you, you feel it. It is something which causes you to believe in a stronger, more positive manner.

There is a science in faith. You must learn how to use it to get what you want from God.

Faith is the very heart of the Bible's teaching. Your faith can become a living force. When it does it becomes a weapon, an instrument of deliverance; a mighty power that brings you to God and what He has promised you.

McLennan Council Approves Ball Park, Memorial Arena

Begin Work Soon On New Road In Snipe Lake Area

Roy Ellis, MLA for Grouard Constituency said in High Prairie today that road crews will be moving into the Snipe Lake Country soon to build the access road to the new bridge which is being built over the Little Smoky River east of Valleyview. Highways minister Gordon Taylor has said that the bridge will be completed this fall or early winter and the new road will go nine miles straight east of the bridge. It will provide Snipe Lake residents with a direct route out of Valleyview and the Valleyview-Whitcourt cutoff.

The people of the Snipe Lake district were particularly anxious to have this road and bridge so that their children could attend high school in Valleyview.

Mr. Ellis said another large road project in the Grouard Constituency is the eleven miles of road the government is building at the present time from the new highway west of High Prairie, north toward the town of McLennan. He added that this road would serve as a main market road for many farmers in the Little Smoky Municipal District.

The 1960 inspector's report for the town of McLennan was read at the August meeting of council. The report recommended changes in three town by-laws which were corrected immediately. The report concluded with commending the town on its solid and favorable financial position, and recommended that the town retain this status.

An agreement received from the provincial government was presented to the council for approval of expenditures on the new baseball park and the McLennan Memorial Arena for the sum of $3,500 on each project. The council passed a resolution to sign the agreement immediately to obtain the necessary funds as soon as possible in order to complete these projects during the current building season. Other applications have been tabled awaiting action and clarification from the organizations involved.

The department of water resources has arranged a meeting of all municipalities to form a governing body for the Heart River project and the canal system which serves the communities. This meeting will be held in the Smoky River municipality office on September 13. Dr. H. W. Fish and Mayor W. C. Kirkland were appointed to represent the town of McLennan at this meeting.

New quotations on a fire engine were received and tabled until the September meeting when a full council is expected to be in attendance.

The storm accompanied by an estimated 80-mile-an-hour wind, broke windows, damaged buildings, killed poultry, broke trees, etc. Reports were received of as high as 35 window panes broken at a farmer's place.

Merchants in Thorhild were completely sold out of glass the next day. Almost to the hour, 24 hours later, most of the same area was hit for the second time by a similar storm, somewhat less severe.

Several farmers had to replace glass twice. Damages to the crops are heavy, and quite a number of farmers had no hail insurance coverage.

Vilna Creamery Wins First Prize

In 1959 the buttermaker received third prize for workmanship control.

The good quality cream shipped by the creamery patrons helped make this award possible.

TIPS FOR PARENTS

By EDITH HENRY
Parents Education Associates

A WISE and thoughtful mother can learn how to assess her child's development and compare it with that of other children.

Let us take block-playing as an illustration.

We give the baby of eighteen months small colored blocks. Studies of many children show that he will carry them around, bang them together, empty them from their box in a pile, and put them back.

By two years, he is placing them in a row or stacking them one on another. He may put them all in his wagon—no building as yet.

Between two and three years we can add variety to his supply. He can have pieces of plain or varnished wood, the same width and thickness, and in lengths twice or four times as great as the unit block.

These can be bought in a shop and may seem expensive. They can be homemade if done carefully.

For some time the child continues with his towers and rows, making them with concentrated effort and great satisfaction.

He uses repetition in all his learning. When he finds he can climb the stairs, he is continually climbing.

When talking is discovered, he talks unceasingly.

One day he discovers that by putting towers close together, he has a wall! And from his rows comes a floor!

Bridging is a real problem; making an enclosure, another.

If the child is given no help, he can have a wonderful time working out these problems for himself. When he is successful, his satisfaction is great.

During this period some of his individuality emerges. He may from the first try to straighten his block edges. He may just put them together without any concern for perfection.

By three years the child has begun to use his blocks more constructively. He builds.

But his joy is still in the building itself, rather than in the finished product.

By four years he is building for a purpose, likes his work to be left up, will join other children in a group project, uses his little trucks or doll's furniture to help the play along.

The use of blocks as play equipment comes to a peak during the period of six to eight years, then gives place to games or reading or sport.

F. Tkaczuk Wins First Prize For Red Poll At Edmonton Exhibition

VILNA — First prize was taken at the Edmonton exhibition by Frank Tkaczuk in class 704, Red Poll division, by Nugget Dasher No. 25655.

Mr. Tkaczuk of Stry was entered for the first time at the exhibition, thus making it a grand affair bringing back a ribbon.

Red Poll cattle are noted for a three-way profit to an average farmer. These are beef, milk and beauty. The owner has plans to enter the animal in the 1961 exhibition when he will be able to qualify for the grand championship.

Mr. Tkaczuk began the breeding of Red Polls six years ago.

Another district farmer who raises these animals is Mike Shangkowsky.

Both these farmers intend to increase their herds and the quality which they hope will bring more ribbons to this district.
